

Mgr. Filip Herza,

is a PhD student at the Department of Anthropology, FHS UK in Prague. Among his major concerns are culture and society in the Austro-Hungarian Empire, particularly the representations of race, gender and body in the mass entertainment culture. His current research focuses on 19th and 20th Century freakshow culture in Prague. His article about the tradition of the so called “lilliputian” exhibitions in interwar Czechoslovakia appeared in Exploring the Cultural History of Continental European Freak Shows and „Enfreakment“ (Cambridge Scholars, 2012).
